GP DOCTORS CLINIC AND HEALTH SERVICES

Introducing our new OPTOMETRIST JOHN EVANS

John is the new Optometrist conducting eye examinations at the Ungooroo Medical Centre.

He is supported by the Brien Holden Vision Institute and brings experience of almost forty years of clinical optometry.

On graduating from the University of NSW he worked in the Northern Territory for two years before going on to work with his wife in their own practice at Randwick.

For the past ten years he has been employed as a part time and locum optometrist in several practices in Sydney, the lower Hunter and Remote Aboriginal Community Health Centres over the Northern Territory.

This year he completed his Certificate in Ocular Therapeutics to enhance his clinical skills for the detection and treatment of eye diseases.

John is a keen walker and cyclist and a believer that a good diet and exercise result in healthy eyes.

He has a home near Kurri Kurri and it is only fitting that he work with the local community as his Grandmother hails from Singleton.

John started seeing patients on 28th October 2019 and will continue on a fortnightly basis.

Please call us on 6571 5111 to make an appointment.

Introducing our new ABORIGINAL HEALTH WORKER

MARIAH HALL

I'm a proud Aboriginal woman from Gomeroi country. I was born and raised in Dubbo, but I am strongly connected to the Collarenebri, Walgett and Brewarrina communities. My parents moved to Newcastle over 10 years ago and since then my family has made a connection to the communities around here. During my time in Dubbo I trained to be an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Practitioner in the Emergency Department, during my time there I saw all aspects of the problems that face our people and health care.

As the new Aboriginal Health Practitioner for Ungooroo Aboriginal Corporation who provides culturally appropriate medical services for Wanaruah communities, my goal is to assist our organisation alongside our nurses and doctors in providing safe, accessible, and culturally appropriate holistic health care. I'll be working both in the Singleton and Muswellbrook communities so don't be afraid to stop me for a yarn or book an appointment.

Please call us on 6571 5111 to make an appointment.
